FIGURICERS; ARRESTED

Herlak's Brother Tries to Escape Yesterday Morning

SD MAN WITH LAMP

In Critical Condition at Hospital Prisoner Is Held—May Face Manslaughter Charge

That his brother was a murderer here came to arrest him at two o'clock yesterday morning, John Mackey of the Ulen Street Waukegan, attackain Voss and officer Niemi and get them into with violence comd the man they sought on a charge ing attempted to kill Eric Erickson, man Maki, the man whose arrest sought, started to obey the command of his brother's body, the brother ing himself between the officers and prisoner until he was finally overed and Maki taken.

While this was taking place Maki's vic- j, Eric Erickson, was being hurried to a June McAllister hospital, where he was aced under the care of Dr. Gourley. he physician pronounced his injuries to e fractures of the skull and Henry a Maki is held pending the death or recovery of Erickson. If Erickson dies he will have to face the probable charge of manslaughter.

If he asks a hearing instead of waiving examination the case will be postponed until Erickson either recovers or dies.

Monday morning through an interpreter Maki told the story of the bloody fight at the south Ulen street house. Maki had known Erickson for a year. Erickson is a sailor of Finland, but has been ing in the Waukegan wire mills.

Sunday night both went home drunk. Maki insisted that Erickson, who stops at different boarding house should not go come with him, but he says Erickson followed him, which furnished reason for the battle that ensued.

According to Maki he warned Erickson to make less noise when the two entered the house.

Then, he says Erickson pushed him down a short flight of steps and against a table and the burning lamp that stood upon it.

The lamp went out and he claims that Erickson in some manner got hold of his throat and was attempting to throttle him an attempt that met with strenuous resistance.

The result was that in some manner, he says, Erickson was hurt and was found to be in a serious condition when the crowd of other boarders in the house rushed to the room hearing curses, struggles, and finally groans, and lit a lamp.

Maki says he does not know how Erickson was hurt, but friends of the injured man, who may die, assert that he grasped the fallen lamp and attacked Erickson with it, shattering his skull.

Dr. Gourley was called and operated upon him Sunday morning.

He found fragments of lamp chimney glass in the man's scalp or rather under it, and also discovered that his clothes were saturated with kerosene from the lamp, indicating that Maki did not tell the whole truth and that he hit Erickson over the head with the lamp on the table when his unwelcome companion would not keep still to prevent the awakening of the other boarders in the house.

OBJECTED TO THE SUSPICION.

Mr. Shackley's Slight Misunderstanding With His Physician.

Mr. Shackley, who had been ordered by his physician to lay aside all his business cares for three months and take a vacation, reluctantly complied. At the end of that time he returned, looking and feeling very much better, and his medical adviser congratulated him on his improved condition. "I didn't like to speak of it at the time," said the doctor, "but when you went away I strongly suspected you of having myocarditis." Mr. Shackley cringed with mortification. "If I had anything of yours in my possession, doctor," he said with strong feeling, "or if you suspected me of having it, you ought to have told me so right then. You don't think I am a thief, do you?" By a hasty explanation of the nature of myocarditis, the doctor mollified his indignant patient and averted a scene.—Youth's Companion.

NARROWLY ESCAPE ASPHYXIATION

A serious accident took place some time during Wednesday night of last week at the home of William Brandt at Barrington, but fortunately fatal results were prevented by the timely discovery of the victims.

Miss Lizzie Brandt and her guest Miss Josephine Moore and Harry Brandt while sleeping on the second floor, were nearly asphyxiated by gas from a down stairs stove.

Mrs. Henry Boinhoff, an aunt who lives near, called on an errand at half past six Thursday and was unable to arouse the occupants and forcing her way in she found the house full of suffocating gas, to such an extent that she could hardly make her way up the stairs. She however succeeded in gaining the second floor in time to save from certain death the young people who were already unconscious. A physician was summoned and after a time succeeded in restoring them to consciousness. All three were quite ill as a result of their experience.

Second Vice President—F. J. Carr, Wauconda.

Secretary—J. B. Morse, Libertyville.

Directors—Herman Rock, Antioch; L. B. Handy, Libertyville; W. F. Clow, Warren; George Quentin, Vernon; Wm. Vickery, Fremont.

RIDING THE SOUTH SEA SURF.

Author's Description Makes One Long to Participate.

"I shall never forget the first big wave I caught. It came there in the deep water. I saw it coming, turned my back on it and paddled for dear life. Faster and faster my board went, until it seemed my arms would drop off. What was happening behind me I could not tell. One cannot look behind and paddle the windmill stroke. I heard the crest of the wave hissing and churning, and then my board was lifted and hung forward. I scarcely knew what happened the first half minute. Though I kept my eyes open, I could not see anything, for I was buried in the rushing white of the crest. But I did not mind. I was chiefly conscious of ecstatic bliss at having caught the wave. At the end of the half minute, however, I began to see things and to breathe. I saw that three feet of the nose of my board was clear out of water and riding on the air. I shifted my weight forward and made the nose come down. Then I lay, quite at rest in the midst of the wild movement, and watched the shore and the bathers on the beach grow distinct. I didn't cover quite a quarter of a mile on that wave, because, to prevent the board from diving, I shifted my weight back, but shifted it too far, and fell down the rear slope of the wave."—Jack London in the Woman's Home Companion.

LOST SOUTH SEAS CONTINENT.

Australian Professor Seeks Solution of Ancient Mystery.

The lost continent of the South seas is a hot study of Dr. Woolnough of Sydney university. The main difficulty in the way of reconciling existing conditions with an original great area was that depths of 2,000 fathoms occurred between the islands. It was necessary to look for land evidence of faulting or breaking to account for the submarine depths. The granite area in Viti Levu was found to be from 400 to 600 square miles in extent, underlying the modern volcanic rocks. A range of granite mountains with precipitous cliffs on each side gave evidence of heavy faults creating chasms of great depth. He found the rivers forming a marked rectangular network, an upraised coral reef 200 feet above the sea level, conglomerate rock showing sea shells at a height of 800 feet above the sea, and certain tilts and tuffs which had formerly been submarine and were now at a height of 4,500 feet. All these indicated a tremendous uplift sufficient to cause greater faulting in the original continent. The rivers of Fiji were of comparatively youthful development, and even at present passing through the canon cycle.

Change Habits in Captivity.

Lions, tigers, and other beasts of prey at zoological gardens and menageries follow the example of mankind in eating by day and sleeping at night. In their native state these animals sleep away the hours of daylight and hunt for their food at night.

THIEVES BUSY IN STORES

One Woman was "Nearly Almost" Caught in the Act in One Store

HOW THEY WORK GAME

Storekeepers to Keep Eyes Pealed and Make it Hot for the First Guilty One They Catch in Waukegan

"Every little bit added to what you have got, makes just a little bit more," seems to be the motto that some of Waukegan's women, who have taken to the shoplifting act, have adopted, and who are at work in some of the local stores at all times of the day, storekeepers say.

Last Saturday Waukegan merchants were compelled to add to their usual number of clerks in order to protect the goods they had on display on the counters in their stores.

Complaints of articles missing from counters in the stores are many and seem to be increasing as Christmas approaches.

One of the clerks in one of the stores said that on Saturday last she nearly caught a Waukegan lad in the act of lifting a piece of jewelry from the counter and placing it in a loose coat lined with pockets.

"This is nothing," the clerk said. "Every day someone tries a different gag on us and I presume that many times it works, but we have been very careful and are trying hard to catch someone in the act and then we will make it hard for them."

A shoplifter goes darting into a store and calls to see rings or something along that line and then after having a large display laid on the counter will inform the lady clerk that she thinks she prefers the ring that she observed in the window, but would like to look at it very carefully before purchasing.

Then when the clerk goes to the window the lady will cast her eyes all over the store and see that no one is looking and being sure of this will pick up one of the very best articles that has been laid out on the counter and hastily stuff it into a muff or a side pocket, it is said.

Numerous clerks in Waukegan state they are sure that this woman whom they do not personally know has committed this act many times, but they have never been able to catch her in the act, thus they are unable to expose her.

Clerks in most of the stores have been notified to notify the proprietor immediately if they are lucky enough to catch anyone in the act and then most of the proprietors promise that they will make it hard for the offender.

FREAK PLAYS IN ROYAL GAME.

Records on Golf Grounds Very Much Out of the Ordinary.

On one occasion a player handicapped himself to the extent of playing all his shots with one leg held up, and the only crumb of satisfaction that some people can get out of the story is that the man missed nearly every shot and lost his wager. Also, who has not heard of men trying to play with one eye covered up, others who have had but one club against the full set used by their opponents, and others who have agreed to put with nothing but their umbrellas? On one occasion a golfer played a round with a champagne bottle against a man who had all his clubs, and it is a sad thing to know that it is on record that the man with the champagne bottle won! There are said to be various Scots who have driven balls off the face of expensive watches, without at the same time driving the faces off the watches, and an American variation of this form of golf, freakishness, as practiced with much success on one occasion, was to drive a ball off the top of a hen's egg, which had been dented at one end to make it hold the ball, but not otherwise damaged.

A Good Reason.

"Don't you get tired of the people who are always looking down in the mouth?" "Indeed I do. I am going to see one now, who invariably gets on my nerves." "What are you going to see him for, then?" "Because he's my dentist."

WORKMEN BURIED IN RUINS

Wm. D. Cameron, Zion City Cement Contractor, Meets Death Beneath Walls

CONCRETE ROOF FELL IN

John Philpew, Newly Married, Is Buried Beneath Debris and Reports Say Others May Be There Also

William D. Cameron, cement contractor, met his death beneath a cement roof of his own building when he knocked out the props beneath the roof of a runway between the lace factory and the bleachery at Zion City Monday morning.

At the same time John Philpew was entombed by the falling debris and was taken out injured but not seriously, being able to walk from a carriage to his own doorstep when taken home.

Early Monday morning it was reported that others may be in the debris and a force of workmen was at once set to work to disinter them.

Contractor Cameron, who resides on Gideon avenue, has built two brick walls between the lace factory and the bleachery and on top of these had erected a concrete roof. This was thought to be in a stable condition, so the contractor knocked the props out and the whole heavy mass of concrete caved in, burying workmen beneath its ruins. Philpew is 30, recently married, a laborer.

Deputy Coroner Conrad immediately proceeded to Zion City and held an inquest which brought the facts of the disaster to light.

Cameron is listed as a carpenter contractor and was working without a city permit. He was asked for his permit, which is obligatory by Zion ordinance, several times and always said that he would get one but never did.

The gallery in which the contractor was killed is 100 feet long, 8 feet wide, and 10 feet high and the ceiling crashed down on him, killing him instantly and burying Philpew to the waist. No one else was caught.

A verdict was rendered in accordance with these facts.

WHEN THEY ARE NOT WANTED.

Some People Seem to Have Faculty for Unconsciously Butting-In.

"Have you ever noticed," said the melancholy man, "how it is the vocation of certain people to get in the way—to be around when they are not wanted? I suppose that if they were aware of their calling they would feel bad about it. But, as a matter of fact, they never are aware of it, and this, probably, explains why they keep at it. Take my brother-in-law, for instance. He has a marvelous faculty for turning up at inopportune moments. If we are going to have company to dinner we can surely count on a message from him asking whether it would be convenient for his wife and himself to drop in on us. If I am anticipating a quiet hour of reading in the evening it is ten to one that I'll hear his voice in the hall. Just as I am hastening to close up my office in the afternoon he is apt to come in and establish himself for a prolonged talk. Take a hint? Such men never take a hint. They are so obtuse that they don't see when their presence turns company into a crowd. They have not learned the art of effacing themselves on occasions, and they never will. You feel sorry for them at first, but sorrow soon changes to another sentiment."

All Street Music Barred.

Street music has been prohibited in Leipzig by an order of the municipality. This order applies not alone to barrel organs and street musicians in general, but to gramophones, pianos and other instruments played indoors with open windows. A local newspaper remarks that by the enforcement of this measure the authorities hope to lessen the number of suicides and murders which occur daily.

Used Teeth to Inflict Punishment.

"There has been a disturbance at Chusan," says the North China Daily News. "The mandarin tried to force the soldiers to take their pay in his cash. The soldiers rebelled and, aided by their wives, nearly hit the officer to death. It appears there is no punishment for biting, so they took this method of inflicting chastigation on the mandarin; had they beaten or struck the officer they would have been subject to punishment by the government."

MARSHAL WILMOT RETURNS HOME FROM EUROPE

After an adventurous trip by land and sea Deputy United States Marshal Wilmot of Waukegan, has returned from Europe, whither he went as the representative of the United States in the deportation of an insane Russian; Nicholas Gabowski, of a Milwaukee Avenue boarding house, Chicago.

Marshal Wilmot arrived in Waukegan Friday night at 9, having reached Chicago from New York earlier in the evening. He crossed from Germany to this country in the Kron Princess Cecelie, a seven day boat.

The marshal was stopped at Bremen by the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, which had to bear the expenses of Gabowski's passage and came back after a short tour of Germany, Gabowski being sent on to Moscow, locked in a railroad compartment under guard. The steamship company did not wish to bear the expense of Wilmot's trip across the continent to Moscow. The company brought Gabowski over here so it had to stand the bill of getting him back also.

PHYSICIAN SUMMONED TO ZION CITY

A most remarkable accident was that of Max Kriescross of Zion City, a laborer who had his leg broken in the power house by accident Tuesday morning.

The feature of the accident was that possibly for the first time in the history of the city, a physician was called.

A Waukegan physician, Dr. Foley, was summoned to set the broken bones. Receiver Hatley taking matters in his own hands and acting for humanity, instead of allowing any divine healing mummery to be practiced on the victim of the accident.

The accident happened as the railroad doors of the power house opened to admit cars. The heavy doors in some manner crashed down on the workmen, slightly injuring one and beaking a leg of the other.

IMPORTANT RULE ON MILITIA

An important ruling which will be of interest to manufacturers and business men has been made by the army and navy department of the government and is found on page 67 of the Military and Navy Code of Illinois.

Any person who deprives a member of the national guard or naval reserve of his employment, makes it impossible for him to be employed by another or obstructs him because he is a member, will be deemed guilty of misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $500.

The same law also refers to those who in any way dissuade any person from enlisting by threat or injury to him in case he does enlist.

It is the duty of the states attorney of each county wherein the information is filed to prosecute such action in the name of the People of the United States.

FIFTY RUPEES EASILY MADE.

Tricky Indian Merchant Feared Inquisitive Stranger.

An Indian merchant wished to dispose of an old elephant and took it to a fair. As soon as he had arrived he noticed a man who, without saying a word, began to walk round the animal, examining it attentively on all sides. The merchant became very anxious, for he feared the man had found out that his elephant was not worth much. He took him aside and whispered in his ear: "I see a customer coming. Do not say a word until I have sold the beast and I will give you 50 rupees." The man looked at the merchant and wonderfully complied with his request. It happened that the customer had more money than sense, so that he was easily taken in. When the bargain was completed and the elephant led away by its new owner, the merchant handed the 50 rupees to the silent man, saying: "Now, I want you to tell me how you discovered the defect in his left leg. I thought I had concealed it so skillfully." "I have discovered nothing," replied the stranger. "It is the first elephant I have ever seen, and I wanted to know which was the head and which was the tail."—Exchange.

Lack of Imagination.

The average Englishman is not an imaginative person, he finds it difficult to put himself into the position of another, especially a foreigner, and most difficult of all if that foreigner be one of the dark races. What is good for himself and his nation, whether it be good, dress or political system, representative government, education, he is apt to think equally well suited to the rest of humanity.—Edinburgh Review.

DARING DAYLIGHT ROBBERY

Residence of Clayton Burnett, of Waukegan, Entered in the Morning

GETS $500 IN JEWELRY

During Absence of Mrs. Burnett Thieves Break into House and Steel Valuables and Destroy Furnishings

Here is the most daring daylight robbery on record. With the daring nerve of a Jesse James gang, a bunch of thieves broke into the Clinton Burnett residence on Hickory street, Waukegan, between 9 and 10 o'clock Monday morning and carried away goods to the value of nearly $500.

About 9 o'clock Mrs. Burnett left the house, after locking all the doors and went over on North avenue to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank James, where she visited until nearly 10 o'clock.

On arriving home at 10 o'clock Mrs. Burnett found the front door wide open. Thinking that perhaps her husband, Mr. Burnett, who is a clerk at the First National bank, had come home for something, she immediately proceeded into the house and then she found there was no one in the house, which was open. She proceeded up stairs and there found all sorts of garments, furniture and keepsakes strewn over the floor.

Mrs. Burnett was then overcome. She hastened over to her sister's home next door, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Storz, and notified them that her home had been broken into.

Mrs. Storz rushed to the phone and told her husband, who in turn notified the police and Mr. Burnett.

All responded in a few minutes and Chief Tyrrell and Assistant Chief Ilicks were soon in the police patrol on their way north in hopes they might find some clew to the thieves.

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Burnett went over the house in the hope that they might learn what had been taken.

Mrs. Burnett went to her jewel casket on the dresser in the front room and then found that her diamond ring, her wedding ring, her gold watch and fob had been taken.

On further investigation they found that $40 in money, an old fashioned revolver that had formerly belonged to Mr. Burnett's grandfather and many smaller trinkets had also been taken. The carpets on the floors had been ripped up; what was still on the floor was covered with mud; dresser draws were strewn all over the floor and the beds and the bedding were torn and thrown all over the house, while parcels of paper had also been cut and thrown all over.

Mrs. Storz, Mrs. Burnett's sister, stated that she had heard a noise on the front porch of the Burnett residence at about 10 o'clock and thinking that it was probably the milkman, she did not investigate.

This robbery was without doubt the most daring that has ever been placed on record in Waukegan.

Picture a band of robbers entering a residence at 10 o'clock in the morning, and staying long enough to destroy furnishings as was done in this residence.

The police are following a clue that leads to Milwaukee and the entire force were detailed on the case.

CALLED FOR SLIGHT SEVERITY.

Indian Viceroy Departed From His Policy of Kindness.

Lord Lawrence, one of the famous viceroys of India, was an able and very simple man. He used to do his work in his shirt sleeves, and discouraged as much as possible all state and ceremony. He was inclined to treat the natives like children, although he always strenuously insisted upon their meriting and receiving justice and kindness. Lord Mayo went to India to succeed him, and on the last afternoon before Lord Lawrence was to leave for home he took the incoming viceroy for a drive. On the way he impressed his doctrine of kindness very emphatically and solemnly on his successor. Lord Mayo thanked him for his helpful advice, and they returned in due course to the government house. The ayce or footman, was slow and awkward in opening the door of the carriage, whereupon Lord Lawrence jumped out in temper and gave his ear an unmistakable tug. Lord Mayo turned to the viceroy's aid with a smile. "My first practical lesson in kindness to natives undoubtedly is an odd one," he whispered.

SYNOPSIS.

Burton H. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paolis, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves, Enid Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant. The four fly from Ajaccio to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine.

"A wire from somebody who knew I was on this boat," thinks the American, and hastily tearing it open, reads: Burton H. Barnes, Steamer Constantine arriving Marseilles, Ajaccio, May 26, 1883. En avant double quick! The devil is behind you. Look out for Saliceti. Details by letter. De B.

From instinct Mr. Barnes touches his hip pocket just to be sure his revolver is there. Then he paces the deck meditatively for a moment, cogitating: "Something must be happening in Corsica for that old Algerine campaigner De Belloc to send such a dispatch. Best the ladies don't see this," and tears the message up, tossing the pieces overboard. As he does so Miss Anstruther is beside him, a fluffy white parasol over her head.

"I think," says Mr. Barnes, "we'll go to London as soon as possible. We have but 20 minutes to catch the train. Ah, here's Tompkins with the valises!" He takes Miss Anstruther's maid, an English girl of about 20, and rather helpless in a French-speaking country, puts her with the heavier articles of their baggage into a volute and dispatches her to the railroad depot at once. Returning to his fiancée on the deck of the boat, he says impatiently: "Why doesn't Edwin bring Marina on deck?"

This is answered by the young Corsican bride herself. "My husband," she lingers on the word radiantly, "will be along in a minute. He is cording up our baggage, sailor fashion. 'All atauto,' I think Edwin calls it. Is it all ashore now, dear Mr. Barnes," and Marina drapes her light traveling robe with graceful hand about her pretty feet.

"Yes, as quickly as possible. Come, Enid!" and the American leads the way.

Marina waves her hand to her husband, who springs down the gangplank carrying the corded articles and cries: "Hurry, Edwin! Twenty minutes to catch the Paris train."

"Then I've got you in time!" shouts a voice from the quay that makes Barnes start and turn about.

Before them stands Miss Maud Charlis, her high, bronzed boots more bronzy than ever, the cardinal red of her long, silk stockings that outline her legs from knees to ankles even more aggressively gleaming. A pert little sunshade is over her straw-hatted head, which is adorned by two long, blonde pigtail tied with blue ribbons which she flops about defiantly. The rest of her between knees and neck is a white muslin frock and pink gash.

"Ma said I was to catch you, Edwin, at the boat if you came on it. She wants you at her hotel, the Grand Rue Noailles. You're to look after that plumbing job in her house in London. The master plumber is robbing her."

"Awfully sorry I cannot accommodate your mother, Maud," remarks Anstruther. The carriage engaged by Barnes is standing ready for them. "We steer straight to the depot. I thought your mother was in London already."

"No, we're going back to Nice. Von Bulow is there. Between us all, ma means to marry him. How I pity the German. I'll ride up with you and tell you all about it," cries the Charlis girl, whose widowed mother sternly represses the unfortunate Maud from growing into young ladyhood and absolutely denies her birthday till she, Lady Charlis, has captured another husband.

Already Enid and Marina are on the back seat, Anstruther steps in; Barnes likewise.

"Room for one more!" cries Maud, who springs in and kisses both of the young ladies effusively.

Already the carriage having rolled up the Boulevard des Dames and passed the Arc de Triomphe has turned into the Rue Bernard du Bois, making for the big railway station, out of which nearly all trains leave Marseilles, not only for Paris, but everywhere else.

"You give my compliments to your mother, Maud," remarks the sailor, trying to cut off Maud's conversation. "Tell her to write me at my London address and I'll hoist her plumber at the yard-arm."

By this time they are at the great station. Miss Charlis skips out and the rest follow her from the carriage. Trains are ready to leave for the four quarters of the globe; the platforms are filled with hurrying passengers.

It is hard to believe a medieval vendetta can be inserted on such a scene. Barnes, glancing at his watch, finds they have ten minutes before the train departs: he says cheerfully but hurriedly: "Look out for the ladies, Edwin; I'll find Tompkins and the rest of the baggage," and goes off to get the tickets and make the necessary arrangements.

But "look out for the ladies," is more easily said than done.

Three jabbering porters have seized their hand baggage and are carrying it in sections towards different trains that will scatter the pieces to the west and the Pyrenees, to the east and Italy.

Edwin pursues these; then Enid gives a gasp. Another porter, calling: "Arles, Tarascon and Avignon!" has pounced upon her special handbag and is rushing away with it. Miss Anstruther flies after him, leaving Maud and Marina together.

Five minutes later, Barnes returns to find Edwin supporting Marina, whose face is very pale, and whose eyes are scarcely conscious. Were it not for the stout arm about her, she would fall to the platform of the great station, under the feet of the hurrying throng.

Miss Charlis is gazing meditatively at her, chewing the blue-enameled knob of her parasol and furtively tucking something in her glove.

"What the deuce has happened to her?" asks the American.

"She is too ill to speak," answers the young husband, astounded. "What am I to do? We cannot take her on the train in this shape. She is absolutely unfit to travel. She has nearly fainted again." For Marina's eyes, seeing Edwin, close again in apparent despair.

"What produced it?" demanded Barnes. "She was the picture of health when I left her."

"Do you know how this occurred?" asks Edwin, eagerly.

"Not so much as you do!" replies Miss Anstruther; "Maud, how did this happen?" She turns suspicious eyes upon Miss Charlis, who cries nervously: "What are you jumping on me for? I was only keeping Marina's handbag and umbrella, and Edwin's canes and rug, and I looked round and she'd got it in the neck!"

"Not a dagger?" shudders Enid. But a hasty inspection of Marina's white throat relieving her, Miss Anstruther cries: "Maud, how dare you use such ambiguous Americanisms! What has she got?"

"How do I know?" pouts Maud, aggressively. "She was too groggy to speak."

"It can't be paralysis!" shudders the groom, trying in vain to revive Marina.

"Not a bit," answers Barnes, after hasty examination.

"Do you think we dare put her on the train?" queries Edwin, anxiously.

"As a friend, I would say we must get her away, but—" The American pauses.

"Mercy! You have some news from Ajaccio?" Enid breaks in, trembling.

"No more news, only it is wise to be moving on. But," Burton feels the fluttering pulse of the bride, "but as a doctor, my opinion is she must remain here for a few hours at least. I'll get a carriage. Here, Tompkins," he says to the maid who had followed him from the crowd in the depot, "help your mistress with the grips!"

The two gentlemen support Marina outside the station, and Maud following, says: "Take her to the Grand, our hotel. Ma's got lovely rooms there."

"Yes, it's only a short distance," remarks Barnes, "and we can make your wife comfortable at once."

The whole party soon reach the Grand hotel on the Rue Noailles. Here they are received with mixed exclamations of surprise and delight and then concern by Lady Charlis. "Marina was well, you say, only a few minutes ago and fainted at the railroad station. What produced it?" cries the English matron, after the young Corsican lady has been taken to a bedroom and a well-recommended physician sent for, Enid staying by the patient until his arrival.

Mr. Barnes doesn't deem it wise to go into details with Lady Charlis.

"You had better descend and make yourself comfortable in the cafe, Edwin," he suggests. "Young husbands are too nervous when their wives are sick."

Taking Anstruther down with him he whispers: "Besides, did you notice whenever she looked at you she swooned again. Best keep away until you learn the true reason of this sudden attack."

"Do you think it is heart disease?" asks Edwin, distractedly.

"Not the kind you mean. I can tell you that your bride is as normally healthy as any woman in the world," answers the American. "It was some shock to the brain or nervous system, I think. The question is, what was it?"

"Can it have been anything connected with that horrible island?" queries Edwin, anxiously.

"That I'm now about to attempt to discover," observes Burton.

Meditating as to what the blow is, Barnes leaves the young English officer and comes upstairs, to interview the only witness he thinks available—the adolescent Maud. As he reaches Lady Charlis' parlor, that lady's door is slightly open, and words issue to him that make him pause outside the entrance.

"Now, Maud," says Lady Charlis, sternly, "what caused Mrs. Anstruther to faint? You were alone with her."

"Ma, I didn't do it! Sure, I didn't!" falters the girl.

"The truth, or I shall take you to my bedroom. You know what will happen to you there, if you don't tell me everything." The voice of the mother suggests awful possibilities.

"Yes, ma, I will; I'll tell you every blessed thing—don't look at me that way. Why, I was just walking round with Marina and I left her for a minute and a gentleman, French and Italian mixed, said: 'You are with Madame Anstruther?'"

He stumbled over the name, and I answered proudly—Marina looked awfully fetching—You bet, she's my cousin by marriage. Then he said: 'Give her this, with my regards,' and handed me a note. Well, I gave it to Marina and that finished her."

"Finished her?"

"Yes, she kind of read it in two pieces. First she drew up and looked like—like you when you think you've caught me in something awful—strong, savage and horrible. And when she read the second part, then she looked like I look when I'm going to catch it."

"And then?" Lady Charlis' voice is intense with excited curiosity.

"Well, then Edwin came up and caught her just as she was going to fall on the floor of the railroad station, and they brought her here."

"Is that everything?"

"Ain't it enough? How should I know anything more?"

"Oh!" exclaims Lady Charlis, in extreme disappointment. A moment after she adds, suavely: "You will have no lessons to-day, Maud."

"Bully!" ejaculates her offspring in wild delight; but sets up a stifled howl as her mother continues: "You can spend the day in bed."

"For what? Handing Marina a paper that anybody would give her?"

"For running away from your new governess on the Quai Joliette. Miss Marston reported it. To bed at once!"

The face of the eavesdropping Barnes becomes gloomy. Here is a witness whose evidence he wants and isn't going to get. He promptly enters Lady Charlis' parlor and says: "Hi, Maudie, run downstairs and I'll follow you and we'll buy some marmos glaces together."

Maud is half-way down the first flight before the last of Barnes' sentence is out of his mouth.

UTILIZING POWER OF TIDES.

Difficulties in Way of Project Will All Be Overcome.

The difficulties of concentrating tidal power and making it available are great and so far it has been used only on a small scale and in a primitive way, but the near future will probably see great electric generating plants established at favorable localities where the tides run high and there are natural storage basins. Some months ago a plan was worked out for utilizing the ebb and flow of the River Seine. Assuming that tidal embankments were needed for guiding the channel through the estuary it was proposed that these be connected to the shore on either side so as to form two large reservoirs, each of which should be divided into a high water basin and a low water basin, the discharge from one to the other to drive turbines. The available tide is about 10 feet. Each reservoir would have an area of about 2,500 acres, and it was estimated that about 6,000-horsepower would be given off during the six hours of the rising tide. The cost of division dams, turbines and other works was placed at $60,000. From this the annual cost of each horsepower was computed at $8.00, including land rent and interest at 10 per cent, but this would rise to more than $30.00 if the channel walls were to form a part of the expense.

"The Devil's Bible."

The volume, which is called "The Devil's Bible," is in the library of the royal palace of Sweden. It is a huge copy of the Scriptures, written on 300 prepared asses' skins. One report says that it took 500 years to complete this copy, which is so large that it has a table by itself. Another tradition says that it was completed in a single night, due to the assistance of his Satanic majesty who, when the work was finished, gave the monk a portrait of himself for a frontispiece. The illuminated likeness of the devil still adorns the front page of the work. The volume was carried off by the Swedes in the Thirty Years' War from a convent in Prague.

OSCAR II. OF SWEDEN DIES; GUSTAVE V. NOW IS THE KING

Whole Country Mourns for the Venerable and Beloved Monarch--His Successor Takes Oath Of Allegiance.

Stockholm.—Oscar II., king of Sweden, died at 9:10 o'clock Sunday morning. The death of the venerable monarch occurred in the royal apartment of the palace, where, surrounded by the members of his family, including the aged queen Sophia and the crown prince, Oscar Gustave, and high ministers of state, the inevitable end had been awaited, while outside the palace great crowds stood with bowed heads and tearful eyes long after the announcement came of the death of their well-loved sovereign.

The whole country is bowed with grief, for King Oscar was something more than a ruler of his people and had endeared himself to them as an intimate and personal friend. When the flag on the palace was dipped to half mast there was a moan of anguish tember 20, 1881, to Princess Victoria of Baden-Baden. Their eldest son, Prince Gustave, was married June 15, 1905, to Princess Margaret Victoria of Connaught. Prince Oscar renounced his succession to the throne and married March 15, 1888, Ebba Munck, of Fulkila.

An event of international importance in the life of King Oscar was his arbitration of the Samoan claims in 1902, when he adjudged the American and British governments to be responsible for the fighting in the Samoan islands in 1899.

Was Able and Democratic.

King Oscar was called the ablest ruler of the nineteenth century and the most democratic king that ever lived. He never made any attempt to conceal the humble origin of his famfrom the assembled multitude and many of them cried "our dear old king is dead."

Gustave V. Now King.

The succession to the throne of Sweden now passes to Oscar Gustave Adolphe, duke of Vermland, the oldest son of the late king. At a meeting of the council of state, Sunday afternoon, the new king took the oath of allegiance under the title of Gustave V., and adopted the motto "With the People for the Fatherland." The princes then took the oath of allegiance, and the new monarch accepted the homage of the state officials.

The last hours of the expiring monarch were passed in unconsciousness and up to the end he gave no sign of recognizing those about him. The queen was grief-stricken because he could not bid her farewell. At 5:15 Sunday morning the gentlemen of the king's court were aroused and ordered to appear at once in the bed chamber. The premier and foreign minister and the highest court officials, together with all the members of the king's family, assembled there and remained at his side until the end came.

Sketch of Oscar's Life.

Oscar was born January 21, 1829. He was the third son of King Oscar I., and of Queen Josephine, daughter of Prince Eugene of Leuchtenberg, and a grandson of Marshal Bernadotte. He succeeded to the throne at the death of his brother, King Carl XV., September 18, 1872. He was married June 6, 1857, to Queen Sophia, daughter of the late Duke William of Nassau. Four children survive him—Gustave, now king, born June 10, 1858; Prince Oscar Bernadotte, born November 15, 1859; Prince Carl, born February 27, 1861, and Prince Eugene, born August 1, 1865. Gustave was married September 20, 1881, to Princess Victoria of Baden-Baden. Their eldest son, Prince Gustave, was married June 15, 1905, to Princess Margaret Victoria of Connaught. Prince Oscar renounced his succession to the throne and married March 15, 1888, Ebba Munck, of Fulkila.

An event of international importance in the life of King Oscar was his arbitration of the Samoan claims in 1902, when he adjudged the American and British governments to be responsible for the fighting in the Samoan islands in 1899.

Scholar and Life Saver.

The late king was distinguished in philosophy, having received degrees from so many universities of Europe that he may fairly be called, so far as degrees indicate, the most learned man in Europe. He was an author, a translator, a learned man in political economy and the science of government, a musician, an historian and a playwright. All the great masterpieces of literature, historical, philosophical and religious, he translated into Swedish. One of his novels, the one which has become the most widely known of his works of fiction, deals with the rise of his own family of Bernadotte and the accession to the throne of Sweden of his grandfather.

With all his accomplishments as a scholar, King Oscar was a brave man and wore upon his breast on state occasions a medal bestowed on him by the French government as a reward for two heroic deeds performed when he was a young man.

Sweden's foreign policy will remain unchanged, it is believed.

Mr. Taft Sails for Home.

Cuxhaven.—The steamer President Grant, with Secretary Taft and the members of his party on board, left here Saturday for New York. The party will visit Boulogne and Plymouth on the way home.

Gov. Patterson Weds.

Nashville, Tenn.—Gov. Patterson of Tennessee was married Saturday to Miss Mamie Gardner at Union City, Tenn. Miss Gardner is a sister of R. A. Gardner of St. Louis.

Indictments Against 200.

Kansas City, Mo.—The county grand jury here Saturday returned indictments against 201 theatrical managers and players now at the local theaters for violation of the law against working on Sunday.

Ask a Receiver.

San Francisco.—The state bank commissioner recommended to the attorney general that a receiver be appointed for the California Safe Deposit and Trust company.

EVANS JOINS

OF GREAT MOVEMENT

TWO LAGGARD VESSELS

Minnesota and Kentucky Slow moving at the Rendezvous
The Warships Make Fine Sight.

Old Point Comfort, Va.—The old starboard flag of blue, emblem of the commander-in-chief of the Pacific bound battleship fleet, was flown to the breeze from the main truck of the battleship Connecticut Monday, and Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans formally assumed his position as leader of the greatest naval movement in the history of the American people.

Monday was assembly day for the fleet, which is to set sail next Monday, and of the 16 great fighting machines ordered to skirt the southernmost end of all America and inaugurate a new naval era in the Pacific ocean, there were but two laggards. These were the 16,000-tonned Minnesota, flagship of Rear Admiral C. M. Thomas, commander of the second squadron of the fleet; and the Kentucky, whose paltry 11,500 tons relegated her to a position at the end of the armored column.

The ships are disposed in two long lines leading in a crescent which begins just off the Old Point pier and points toward Norfolk. The Connecticut, which lies scarcely more than a stone's throw from the pier, heads the column nearest the shore. Next to her is her sister ship, the Louisiana, the champion hard-hitting, fast-firing vessel of her class, and then in turn come the Kansas and the Vermont, all registering 16,000 tons.

These four vessels compose the first division of the first squadron of the fleet and are the personal charges of Rear Admiral Evans. The second division in the first squadron is made up of the Georgia, Virginia, New Jersey and Rhode Island. The flag of Rear Admiral William H. Emory, in command of the division, floats from the Georgia's truck.

BANK PRESIDENT ARRESTED.

D. F. Walker, of San Francisco, Taken at Santa Barbara.

Santa Barbara, Cal.—President D. F. Walker, of the California Safe Deposit & Trust company, was arrested at the Potter hotel by Policeman Ross Monday. Ross went to President Walker's room and was refused admittance by Mrs. Walker, who said her husband was not in to anyone. The officer entered, however, and placed Walker under arrest. Mrs. Walker faints.

San Francisco.—Attorney General U. S. Webb late Monday afternoon commenced proceedings in the superior court for the appointment of a receiver for the suspended California Safe Deposit & Trust company, whose president and general manager are arrested for embezzlement.

RED CROSS TO RAISE FUND.

Asks Contributions for the Miners of Monongah.

Washington.—The machinery of the Red Cross society will be utilized in collecting contributions in aid of the families of the victims of the mine horror at Monongah, W. Va.

Instructions were sent by telegraph to the state branches of Illinois, Ohio, New York, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, asking that announcements be made through the local newspapers to that effect. They will also be received by the local organizations.

Monongah, W. Va.—When darkness came Monday night a total of 66 bodies had been brought from the two wrecked mines at Monongah.

EXPLOSION WRECKS GAS PLANT.

Terrible Blast in the Town of White Pigeon, Mich.

White Pigeon, Mich.—The White Pigeon carbonite and gas plant was totally wrecked by an explosion Monday evening. Several persons were severely injured and every window in town was cracked. The shock was felt for 12 miles. The explosion is attributed to a leak in the gas tank.

Gustave Receives Army's Homage.

Stockholm.—Attended by the princes and his suite, King Gustave V., at noon Monday, received the homage of the troops, who were drawn up in a semi-circle around the palace. The king addressed the troops briefly, saying that it was his firm conviction that they would always be ready to follow him when the welfare of the country required them to do so. The funeral of the late king is expected to be held December 19. Only the reigning sovereign among the crowned heads, is likely to attend.

Boiler Explosion Is Fatal.

Allentown, Pa.—One of a battery of nine boilers in the drawing department of the local plant of the American Steel & Wire company blew up Monday, instantly killing two men and injuring two others, one of whom died three hours later. The accident resulted in the shutting down of the entire mill, throwing 800 men out of employment. The drums of the exploded boiler were hurled through a frame storage house, crushing it like an egg shell, into the Little Lehigh river, a distance of 100 feet.

THE ANTIOCH NEWS.

ANTIOCH, ILLINOIS.

A REPUBLICAN NEWSPAPER.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY

A. D. JOHNSON, Editor and Proprietor

By Mail, One Dollar per Year, in Advance

Telephone, Antioch No. 402.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

In the Sixtieth Congress, now assembled, there is a strong nucleus of pronounced prohibitionists, but it is incredible that a majority in either house will attempt to force prohibition upon the District of Columbia without first giving the people affected by such legislation an opportunity to voice their sentiment on the proposition. That the issue will ultimately take shape and be disposed of there can be no doubt, but the home rule principle should not be violated to such a flagrant extent as would be the case if any precipitate action should be taken by Congress.

There is every indication that the Republican majority in Congress is likely to temper its action with excessive caution during this session because of the supposed effect of any decisive action upon the Presidential campaign, and we hope that the majority will not over do this policy. The United States is more populous, more active, richer, more progressive than it ever has before; therefore its needs are greater and the demands upon statesmanship are heavier. The people are not penurious and they will applaud strong, decisive, constructive work. They want many things and are willing to pay for them and they will not find fault with Congress for meeting great needs in a great way.

HIS FIRST LITERARY EFFORT.

Not Likely Among the "Six Best Sellers" of That Year.

A party of friends had gathered in the author's house to congratulate him on the success of his new book. They were extravagantly enthusiastic, as friends are apt to be on such occasions, and the young author was swelling visibly. The author's mother beamed. Finally one of the guests turned to her. "Tell me, did your son show symptoms of literary genius at an early age? I presume he did, and you've got some baby effusion treasured away." "I have the first letter he ever wrote me," said the mother smiling, "and maybe you'd call it his first literary effort. He was on a visit to his grandmother's and he had never visited her without me before. But maybe you'd like to hear the letter." The guests chorused "Yes" eagerly. The mother produced a crumpled envelope and paper and read slowly: "Dear Mama—The dogs is awful thick here. Your loving son."

Explosion and "Implosion."

Everyone knows what an explosion is, but its opposite, an implosion, is less familiar. At greater depths in the sea the conditions are favorable for its production. At 2,500 fathoms the pressure is, roughly speaking, two and one-half tons to the square inch—that is to say, several times greater than that exerted by the steam on the piston of a powerful engine.

Problem of India's Development.

Dazzled and intoxicated by western ideas, the Hindu student is only too prone to clamor for their immediate adoption in the east, ignoring altogether the complex and firmly-established conditions which make all the difference between success and failure.—London Daily Telegraph.

Advice to a Theorist.

"What kind of views would you advise me to set forth in my next lecture tour?" Inquired the habitual orator. "Well," answered the coldly practical theorist, "if I were you I'd get some stereopticon views."

Effect of Relaxation.

Dr. Long Mayhew Young of Chicago does not agree with us that sleeping on the front is good, says the New York Press. But he seems to be in his own mind an expert on relaxation. "In my opinion," he says, "the want of relaxation is the principal cause of insomnia. To produce relaxation we must first equalize the circulation of the blood. This is very often accomplished by sleeping with the knees up, which throws the blood into the lumbar region. The position is rather tiresome (I should say so) and on stretching out the legs equalization and therefore relaxation takes place. For insomnia supervening upon nervousness I would advise taking some good, long breaths. When due to want of control of the thinking apparatus eat three or four ginger snaps (ten cents a pound), which will warm up the stomach and transfer the nervous energy to the solar plexus, or stomach brain."

Whenever you feel that your stomach has gone a little wrong, or when you feel that it is not in good order as is evidenced by mean headaches nervousness bad breath, and belching, take something at times and especially after your meals until relief is afforded. There nothing better offered the public today for stomach troubles, dyspepsia, indigestion, etc., than Kodol. This is a scientific preparation of natural digestants combined with vegetable acids and it contains the same juices found in every healthy stomach. Kodol is guaranteed to give relief. It is pleasant to take; it will make you feel fine by digesting what you eat. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Probably Not.

An actor who had made a lamentable failure in a part from which he had hoped for great success, said to a fellow thespian: "I can't make out why the thing didn't go. Wasn't my acting good?" "Well—ah—" stammered the other, who was in a truly embarrassing plight, "'good' is not the word."

Here's Good Advice.

O. S. Woolever one of the best known merchants of Le Royville, N. Y., says: "If you are ever troubled with piles apply Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It cured me of them for good 20 years ago." Cures every sore, wound, burn or abrasion. 25c. at J. H. Swan's, drug store.

Diet Checked Berl-Berl.

Some time, ago the rica supply being short, prisoners in Japanese jails were fed largely on barley. The result was the immediate cessation of new berl-berl cases.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidneys—poisoned blood will attack the vital organs or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away call by call.

Bladder troubles most always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sized bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both names of Swamp-Root, sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Women and Their Fears.

Not half the horrors that women suppose are going to happen to them ever do happen. Yet it is in the nature of the gentle sex to expect and look out for them; to anticipate what fate may never send. In the form that women nurture it, too, it is so nebulous, so vague, so terrifying because so scantily defined, as to be absolutely possessive.—Woman's Life.

A tickling cough, from any cause, is quickly stopped by Dr. Shoop's cough cure. And it is so thoroughly harmless and safe, that Dr. Shoop tells mothers everywhere to give it without hesitation, even to very young babes. The whole some green leaves and tender stems of a lunghealing mountainous shrub furnish the curative properties to Dr. Shoop's cough cure. It calms the cough, and heals the sore and sensitive bronchial membranes. No opium, no chloroform nothing harsh used to injure or suppress. Simply a resinous plant extract, that helps to heal aching lungs. The spaniards call this shrub which the doctor uses, "The Sacred Herb." Demand Dr. Shoop's. Take no other. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Man's Better Nine-Tenths.

A Cornell professor is endeavoring to make the point that women and men are equals. It is safe to say that the ladies will not submit to any such reduction to ranks without a bitter struggle.

Cough Caution

Never, positively never poison your lungs. If you cough—ever from a simple cold only—you should always heal, soothe, and ease the irritated bronchial tubes. Don't blindly suppress it with a smothering balm. It's strange how some things finally come about. For twenty years Dr. Shoop has constantly warned people not to take cough mixtures or prescriptions containing Opium, Chloroform, or similar poisons. And now a little late though—Congress says "Put it on the label if poisons are in your Cough Mixture." Good. Very good. Hereafter for this very reason mothers and others, should insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. No poison marks on Dr. Shoop's label—and none in the medicine, also it must be law be on the label. And it's not only safe, but it is said to be by those that know it best, a truly remarkable cough remedy. Take no chance that particularly with your children. Insist on having Dr. Shoop's Cough Cure. Compare carefully the Dr. Shoop package with others and note the difference. No poison marks there! You can always be on the safe side by demanding

OUR NATIONAL GUARD

What the Government Should Do to Make Improvement in the Service.

REPORT OF MAJOR TILLSON

His Observations While with the Illinois National Guard at Camp Lincoln Last Summer—His Recommendations.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 3.—Major John C. F. Tillson, of the Fourth Infantry of the United States army, who was stationed at Camp Lincoln with the Illinois national guard last summer, has formulated his report upon the duty assigned him. Major Tillson's battalion was the first battalion of the regular army that has encamped with the national guard of Illinois. The battalion was ordered to Springfield by the secretary of war on the request of Governor Denoon, who believed that the instruction would be of immense value to the guardsmen of this state.

Major Tillson in his report makes three recommendations in favor of the national guard, which he believes should be carried out by the national government. These recommendations, if adopted, would require the government to make the following provisions: First, skilled instructors from the army for every company of the guard; second, armories; third, pay for the time spent in drilling and instruction. The full report of Major Tillson was: Fort Thomas, Ky., Nov. 4, 1907, The Adjutant General, United States Army, Washington, D. C. Sir—I have the honor to submit the following report of my tour of duty at the encampment of the infantry organization of the Illinois national guard from June 15 to Aug. 10, 1907.

In compliance with paragraph 1, special orders, No. 76, Department of the lakes, Chicago, June 3, 1907, I arrived at Springfield, Ill., about 5 a. m., June 10.

At the depot I found the Second Illinois Infantry, Colonel James E. Stuart, commanding, engaged in detraining. I proceeded with this regiment to Camp Lincoln, where the tents were found pitched and floored ready for occupancy.

Camp Lincoln was established under general orders, No. 4, state of Illinois, A. G. O., Springfield, March 6, 1907.

The routine of duty was determined upon by each regimental commander before arrival at camp and published in a printed list of calls.

Guard Has Admirable Site.

Camp Lincoln is located on the western boundary of the city of Springfield, three miles from the center of the city, and is reached by electric lines. The camp site is very beautiful, magnificent shade trees, admirably distributed, lending beauty and comfort. The natural drainage is excellent, and a system of sewers supplements this and carries off the waste water from the kitchens.

Water is piped from the city mains and the hydrants are conveniently distributed. Shower baths are provided for officers and men. The water closets provided for officers and men are connected with the sewer and are flushed frequently. Kitchen garbage and refuse were removed from the camp daily and covered with petroleum and burned. The mess tents were screened and the drinking water boiled and the camp carefully policed each day. In consequence of these sanitary provisions and observances there was no serious case of sickness during the entire encampment and no sickness however slight that could be attributed to a failure in camp sanitation.

Small for Battle Exercises.

The camp consists of a large parade ground, a camp ground, and a target range up to 1,000 yards. All of these are ample for the encampment of a regiment, and its drill in close and extended order, and its instruction in target practice. The area is so restricted as to preclude intelligent battle exercises. Should battle exercises be attempted nearly everything must be left to the imagination and all rules regarding distances must be violated.

Battle exercises undertaken with these false and absurd conditions are worse than useless, for they impress the participants with false notions of the use of ground and distance, which in a real battle must lead to criminal sacrifice of life.

It was evident at first observation that there was a large percentage of the enlisted men who were recruits. Upon investigation it was learned that an average of 40 per centum of the enlisted strength of the regiments had served less than one year; and not much can be learned in the first year of service, such as it is in the national guard. The necessity for elementary instructions in everything—drill, discipline, guard duty, target practice—is everywhere apparent. To have attempted to instruct these guardsmen in the refinements of military art could have been only an exhibition of pedantry on the part of the instructor.

Few indeed would have been interested in such work and fewer could have appreciated it. Here was presented an opportunity to teach the first principles of military education to officers and men eager to know them and willing to work hard, and to sacrifice every form of amusement on this, their summer vacation, in acquiring this knowledge.

Guardsmen Are Good Workers.

If the idea everywhere prevails that national guardsmen go to camp for a good time and are not ready to do a soldier's work. It is an erroneous idea. Beginning with the school of the soldier, and treating these regiments as we would a regiment of recruits in the United States army, we carried them through the school of the battalion. The time was short and the work was hard, but no officer or man during the entire encampment complained of overwork, or indeed made the slightest complaint of any kind.

It must be borne in mind that the work of each regiment was prescribed by its colonel; that the weather was often so hot that drills in military posts would have been suspended; that the work of each regiment amounted to the maximum work ever required of regular soldiers; and yet, there was no complaint, no suspension of work, and no desire on the part of officers or men for a reduction of the work.

Every Regular an Instructor.

From June 15 to July 1, during the encampment of the Second and Seventh regiments, I was without assistance in this work of instruction. After July 1 I had the assistance of a battalion of the Fourth Infantry. This battalion would first execute all the movements in the drill prescribed for the day, the national guardsmen observing them closely. Then the officers and men of the regular battalion would drill the guardsmen in the same movements; and finally, the officers and noncommissioned officers of the national guard would drill their men in the same movements.

Every enlisted man in the regular battalion was a drill master in the school of the soldier; and in the school of the company and battalion, an enlisted man of the regulars accompanied every squad. For instruction in guard duty, a whole battalion would be put on guard during the day and a company of regulars would go on duty with them, every regular soldier acting as an instructor.

The Chicago regiments had their target practice at Camp Logan near Chicago. The four regiments from the interior of the state have their target practice at Camp Lincoln during their encampment. A battalion of guardsmen would have practice each day, with a company of regulars detailed to assist and instruct; one regular soldier being at each firing point as instructor.

Work Was Practical.

The details of this work were clearly indicated in a list of calls and schedule of work of the Third Illinois Infantry, which was, with some modifications, followed by the other regiments. The work for each day was prescribed on the preceding day and was the subject for recitation in the noncommissioned officers' school on the preceding day. By this system of work, instruction reached every individual guardsman in drill regulations, guard duty, and target practice.

This work was not only of highest practical value to the national guard, but was of equal value to the enlisted men of the regular battalion. Nearly every man in this battalion was a re-enlisted man and a perfectly competent instructor, though few of them had ever had the opportunity to instruct others.

An important rule of the camp was for every officer and noncommissioned officer, regular or guardsman, to impart instruction and correct errors of any individual, whenever the opportunity occurred; and invariably the party who received the instruction or correction seemed grateful for it; such was the anxiety to learn.

I personally superintended every drill and ceremony during the encampment, and lectured almost daily to officers and noncommissioned officers on practical subjects which their needs suggested.

Governor Inspects Troops.

I am indebted to the officers and men of the battalion of the Fourth Infantry and to First Lieutenant Errington, of the Eleventh Infantry, who was on duty with the First Illinois regiment, for the lively interest they took in their work and for their cordial cooperation. I am further indebted to the governor of Illinois and to General Thomas D. Scott, adjutant general of the state, for their support and encouragement in this work. Governor Denoon visited each regiment in camp, and showed, at all times, the greatest interest in their work. General Scott, a soldier of distinguished record in the rebellion, lived in camp the whole time, and his attitude on all questions was that of the trained soldier.

As to the personnel of the Illinois national guard I could use only terms of praise. As a class, they represent the best of our American citizenship. A week's acquaintance with each regiment is not sufficient for an officer to select the best among them to recommend for future preference. The services of these officers is published in a register every two years, and forms part of the report of the adjutant general of the state. No safer guide could be taken, without a closer acquaintance, than in the length of service of these officers, in selecting officers for preference. As a rule I found the officers of greatest experience the most useful.

What the Government Should Do.

The national guard wants to be good soldiers. They want to be efficient. They are the best patriots among us. They can be made efficient for their great work if the national government will provide: First, skilled instructors from the army for every company of the guard; second, armories; third, pay for time spent in drills and instruction. Very respectfully,

JNO. C. F. TILLSON,
Major Fourth Infantry.
By order of the commander-in-chief,
THOMAS W. SCOTT,
Adjutant general.

Badly Mixed Up.
Abraham Brown, of Winterton, N. Y., had a very remarkable experience; he says: "Doctors got badly mixed up over me; one said heart disease; two called it kidney trouble; the fourth blood poison, and the fifth stomach and liver trouble; but none of them helped me; so my wife advised trying Electric Bitters, which are restoring me to perfect health. One bottle did me more good than all the five doctors prescribed." Guaranteed to cure blood poison, weakness and all stomach, liver and kidneys complaints, by J. H. Swan, druggist, 50c.

Does This Hit You?

HAD NO CAUSE TO BE AFRAID.

Very Harmless "Tiger" Was Irishman's Companion in Cage.

The manager of a wild animal show was so unfortunate as to lose by death the only lion in his collection. After trying in vain to replace the loss he finally secured an Irishman to appear in his exhibition on all fours in the lion's cage, wrapped in the dead beast's skin. This plan worked well enough for a while, and the public was fooled. One night, however, it became necessary, in the course of one performance, for the lion to enter the tiger's cage. Pat pleaded strenuously behind the scenes against being sent into the other man's presence; but his employer was unyielding, assuring him repeatedly that the tiger was harmless. Though well-nigh dead with fear, Pat, after long and vigorous persuasion, at last crawled into the tiger's cage. No sooner was he in the cage than he lost what little courage he had left, and lay down, calling in a hoarse whisper, "Please don't bite me; I ain't no lion; I'm an Irishman." The tiger appeared thoroughly disgusted, and in a moment he growled back, "Shut up, you fool, so am I."—Harpers Weekly.

Go Easy.
"Don't holler too loud 'en things is comin' yo' way," said Brother Dickey. "De very best plan is to take it easy. Once 'pon a time dar wuz a man got so happy he woke up in settlement to tell it 'bout it, an' les 'bout dat time of Satan, who wuz projectin' roan, foun' out whar dat nag wuz at, an' dat wuz de las' er it!"

Of this we may be sure, that ridicule fastens on the vulnerable points of a cause, and finds out the weak side of an argument. For Post Cards.
Here is a hint for those who have pretty foreign post cards to dispose of: A high threefold screen of plain green oilcloth was purchased and a narrow strip of black oak run across each panel about two-thirds of the way up. In the space above the tinted cards were prettily arranged, fastened with stationer's glue, and looking like bits of mosaic on the dark background.

When the Stomach, Heart, or Kidney nerves get weak, then these organs always fail. Don't drug the Stomach, nor stimulate the heart or kidneys. That is simply a makeshift. Get a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The restorative is prepared expressly for these weak inside nerves. Strengthen these nerves, build them up with Dr. Shoop's Restorative—tablets or liquid—and see how quickly help will come. Free sample test sent on request by Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Your health is surely worth this simple test. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Tears Prohibited.
It is unfortunate that fashion no longer allows the tender little playgoer to weep, a privilege which belonged to nineteenth century femininity, for there is no greater luxury than a good cry over some picturesque and heart-stirring tragedy. It is this which makes "East Lynne" so popular out of London. — London Black and White.

A Real Wonderland
South Dakota, with its rich silver mines, borax and farm, wide ranges and strange natural formations, is a veritable wonderland. At Mound City, in the home of Mrs. E. D. Clapp, a wonderful case of healing has lately occurred. Her son seemed near death with lung and throat trouble. "Exhausting coughing spells occurred every five minutes," writes Mrs. Clapp, "when I began giving Dr. King's new discovery, the great medicine, that saved his life and completely cured him." Guaranteed for coughs and colds, throat and lung troubles. by J. H. Swan, druggist. 50c. and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Real Simplicity.
The real simplicity is not outward, but inward. It consists in singleness of aim, clearness of vision, directness of purpose, openness of mind, cheerfulness of spirit, sincerity of taste and affection, gentle candor of speech and loyalty to the best that we know. I have seen it in a hut. I have seen it in a palace.—Van Dyke.

Patting Himself on the Back.
When a man is a millionaire it is the easiest possible process for him to study out how fixity of purpose, ambition, judgment and close application to his work were the deep-seated virtues that made him the success that he is.

Bad Backache

Such agonies as some women suffer, every month, from backache!
Is it necessary? No. It can be prevented and relieved, when caused by female trouble, by taking a medicine with specific, curative action, on the female organs and functions, which acts by relieving the congestion, stopping the pain, and building the organs and functions up to a proper state of health. Try.

WINE OF CARDUI WOMAN'S RELIEF

"I suffered for 15 years," writes Mrs. Malinda A. Akers, of Basham, Va., "with various female troubles. I had such a backache that it drew me over, so I could not stand straight. The doctors could not help me, so I took Cardui, and now I feel like a new woman."

Short Honeymoons.
Honeymoons are going out of fashion, and will probably eventually disappear—at present, they are often shortened to four or five days, or even a paltry week-end; and, after all, these protracted wedding trips, though generally the event of a woman's life, were often boring to a man.

There is something about Kennedy's Laxative cough syrup that makes it different from others, as it causes a free yet gentle action of the bowels through which the cold is forced out of the system. At the same time it heals irritation and allays inflammation of the throat and lungs. It is pleasant to take. Children like it. Contains no opiates nor narcotics. Sold by J. H. Swan.

"ONE MINUTE" WASHER

See the fly wheel under the bottom of the tub? That's a feature of the "One Minute" Washer exclusively its own. This fly wheel is driven by a gear wheel with crank attached and re-steel balls just on a bicycle. You'd be surprised how stop the machine once this speed. Two strokes of the handle are usually sufficient to get under headway--then the fly-wheel does half the work
